This is the second part of a series on PHP Security. We will be looking at file uploads security. Images used as attachments, email, or uploads to any site are often considered to be the most dangerous form of attack vector that can be used to compromise a web server. However, with an array of file upload and processing tools it is very easy for a malicious user to compromise the entire platform. In this post I will be going over the security that is used by phpStorm and what can be used to secure them. In part one, we went over the basic functionality of the phpStorm File Upload Tool and how it can be used for file sharing. In this post, we will be going over some of the built in security checks as well as how to make sure it is never used on a production platform. File Upload Basics and Security in PHP As mentioned above, the one feature that can be used to compromise phpStorm is the upload functionality. The security this does is relatively high in a medium security environment. For most sites however, this is not good enough. A hacker can use this to upload files that are linked to an exploit, run a Shellshock exploit, and more. This is why proper security measures need to be taken. Let's take a look at some of the basic functionality and default security checks. The First Default Check: String Filters and SQL Injection First and foremost, there is a basic filter that is set on all actions. Since they are default, the first thing we should check is if the incoming request is one of the types that will be allowed. Here we are using the `is_uploaded_file()` function which can be used to check the file type and get the extension. If we see that the request is not of a type that we want to allow then we can exit out. We can also use the `is_uploaded_file($_FILES['file']['tmp_name'])` function to ensure that the file is being uploaded. Next, we can also make sure that we are not sending any SQL commands to the server. When dealing with sql injections, even if we escape the user inputted parameters, a SQL statement can still lead to a SQL vulnerability. The safest way to ensure that we are not vulnerable to SQL attacks is to use prepared statements. These statements will place certain characters within the database that we can use to execute our

The Gradient Tool lets you apply a gradient pattern to an image and use it to add depth and realism to an image. The Gradient Tool is excellent for creating backgrounds and images that have a background look and feel. The Healing Brush allows you to easily repair minor image defects such as dust or scratches. The Lasso Tool allows you to draw a freeform or straight line on an image, and is great for applying image editing effects. Use the Lasso Tool to select parts of an image and copy them to another document, and then paste them into a new image. The Magic Eraser allows you to erase or correct any pixel in an image with no trace of what was originally there. The Paint Bucket allows you to select a color from a palette and copy it to another area of the image. The Paint Bucket is very useful when you want to reproduce a specific color. The Pen Tool lets you draw freeform shapes and then fill them with any color. You can also create guides and then fill or color parts of an image. The Spot Healing Brush is designed to fix small areas of an image that have been damaged. It's fast, accurate and convenient. The Spot Healing Brush works by intelligently "patching" color and texture from the surrounding pixels and uses advanced algorithms to increase the accuracy of its selection. If you don't like the results, you can erase the top layer to start again. The Liquify tool allows you to alter the way an image appears. You can stretch, squash, or warp an image by dragging, or you can move or resize the image by entering specific numbers. You can also change the hue and brightness of an image. You can create the illusion of perspective or change the direction of an object by using the Filter>Blur>Radius of an image. An image filter lets you control the look and feel of an image. Filter options are usually based on color, brightness, or contrast. Many filters also have a variety of adjustment options. The Gradient Tool allows you to apply various gradient effects to an image. You can create a flat color gradient, a linear gradient, a radial gradient, a radial gradient with a center, an angular gradient, a linear gradient that includes a center, or a multidirectional gradient. The Gradient Tool allows you to apply various gradient effects to an image.
